INDICATION

Rev. Brother Richard J. O'Kelly

Rev. Brother Francis M. Kennedy

It is with honor for a noble and sparkling mind devoted to the service of his Creator we dedicate this yearbook.

Brother O'Kelly was a religious man, but also a man of letters. In both these aspects of life, he showed a passionate, conscientious loyalty to the highest standards. His years were spent in expanding the love and knowledge of Our Lord and scholarship across three continents.

A man with an unforgettable, magnetic personality, he attracted both young and old into his confidence. His rare gift of humorous expression coupled with the wisdom of the years made him an invaluable friend.

Brother Januarius O'Kelly has departed from us and returned to Creator and Redeemer. This great spirit of a sincerely Catholic Brother and of a magnanimous and zealous educator will not be forgotten by those who experienced such ardor.

Born and raised in New York City, Brother Kennedy renounced early in high school all to accept the mission of religious educator. After twenty-five years that first zeal has only become more intense.

Having taught in Power Memorial, Rice, Blessed Sacrament, all in the New York area, and Newfoundland, his interest in the academic welfare of students prompted him to originate and later enlarge the Student Aid Program.

As moderator of the Student Council he has matched his concern for academics only by his genuine affection for the welfare of his students as people, instilling in them sound principles of democracy and social virtues.

Recognizing that he is deserving of much gratitude, we the students of C.M. hope to manifest our appreciation for his labors by dedicating the 1966 Talisman in his name.

CLASS HISTORY

"Gentlemen, we don't want to scare you with our tactics. We just want to instill a little respect in you". This first hour we were bonded together with the unbreakable tie—fear. That was the day we began to notice the illogical linoleum floor in the cafeteria. That year we fought for the water fountains. We fought for the fixing of the clocks. We scrambled to raise money for the football field. Firecracker scandals came and went. There was the fire in A-3; twenty coats burned and that was great fun. We kept lists of how many times we went to jug. That year all of us bought tickets from Brother Ford.

It was the second year when we trod on B.C.H. in everything. The administration was switched, but rumors of military rule proved false. Cramming wasn't a novelty anymore when it was found that even we could flunk out. We quickly realized that life in the Freshmen building had been pretty good. We were the bosses. Loads of us dropped Latin for eternity 'cause as Juniors we'd be taking History of the U.S. —you see, we were going to be upperclassmen now.

Money for the football field was still being raised—and so were eyebrows for Butch's back door penny dance. Junior gym forest-clearers were in great demand for a proposed C.M. football field. Those exams were the toughest ever. The important elections took place, captains were elected, positions filled, summer supplements went over due—and then we were tops.

School got easier to take. The bomb scare preceded the Archie Bills' win. Of course, colleges were besieged with our applications. We were now either in uncontrollable ecstasy or in earnest, world-shattering discussion. April soothed things for us. We had, most of us, decided. But who wanted to go then—only a month left.

We started thinking of what we left behind here. You know, we were pretty damn great.

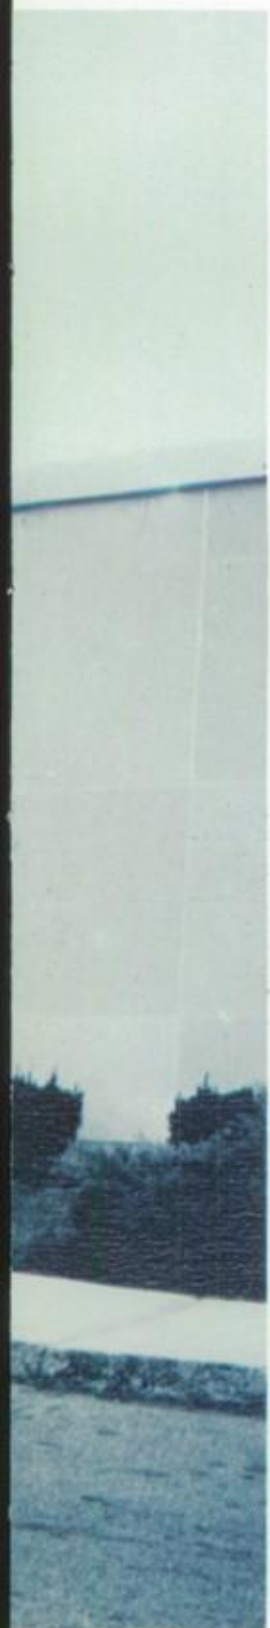

A Legacy to the Future

The primary purpose of any school is to further the educational development of the students and to prepare them for living in society. Catholic Memorial, however, is definitely not just any high school. Here we have evidenced more than just this. Through the labors of the faculty we are aware that anything undertaken should be accompanied by a desire for its perfect completion. C.M. is dedicated to excellence. In its short history excellence has been its outstanding characteristic. In intellectual and extra-curricular endeavors, C.M. has aimed for and achieved this excellence. It is with confidence in the future graduates that the Class of 1966 leaves this achievement to be carried on.

With confidence in the future.

Perfection in all undertaken.

"And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us". What is the vocation of the 'People of God'—Christians—if not to bear witness to it in our daily lives? And how can we bear witness to this good news unless we understand the full significance of this text. That exactly is the goal of a religious education.

The life of a student attains its full maturity and meaning when it assimilates and orders all to their respective places. Through the study of salvation history, religion courses at Catholic Memorial have as their goal the understanding of life and man. As part of this history, the Christian becomes dynamically aware that religion is not a subject but an active response to God through a self-commitment and service to Him and man in the apostolate of developing the community of the 'People of God' while in the religious and married states.

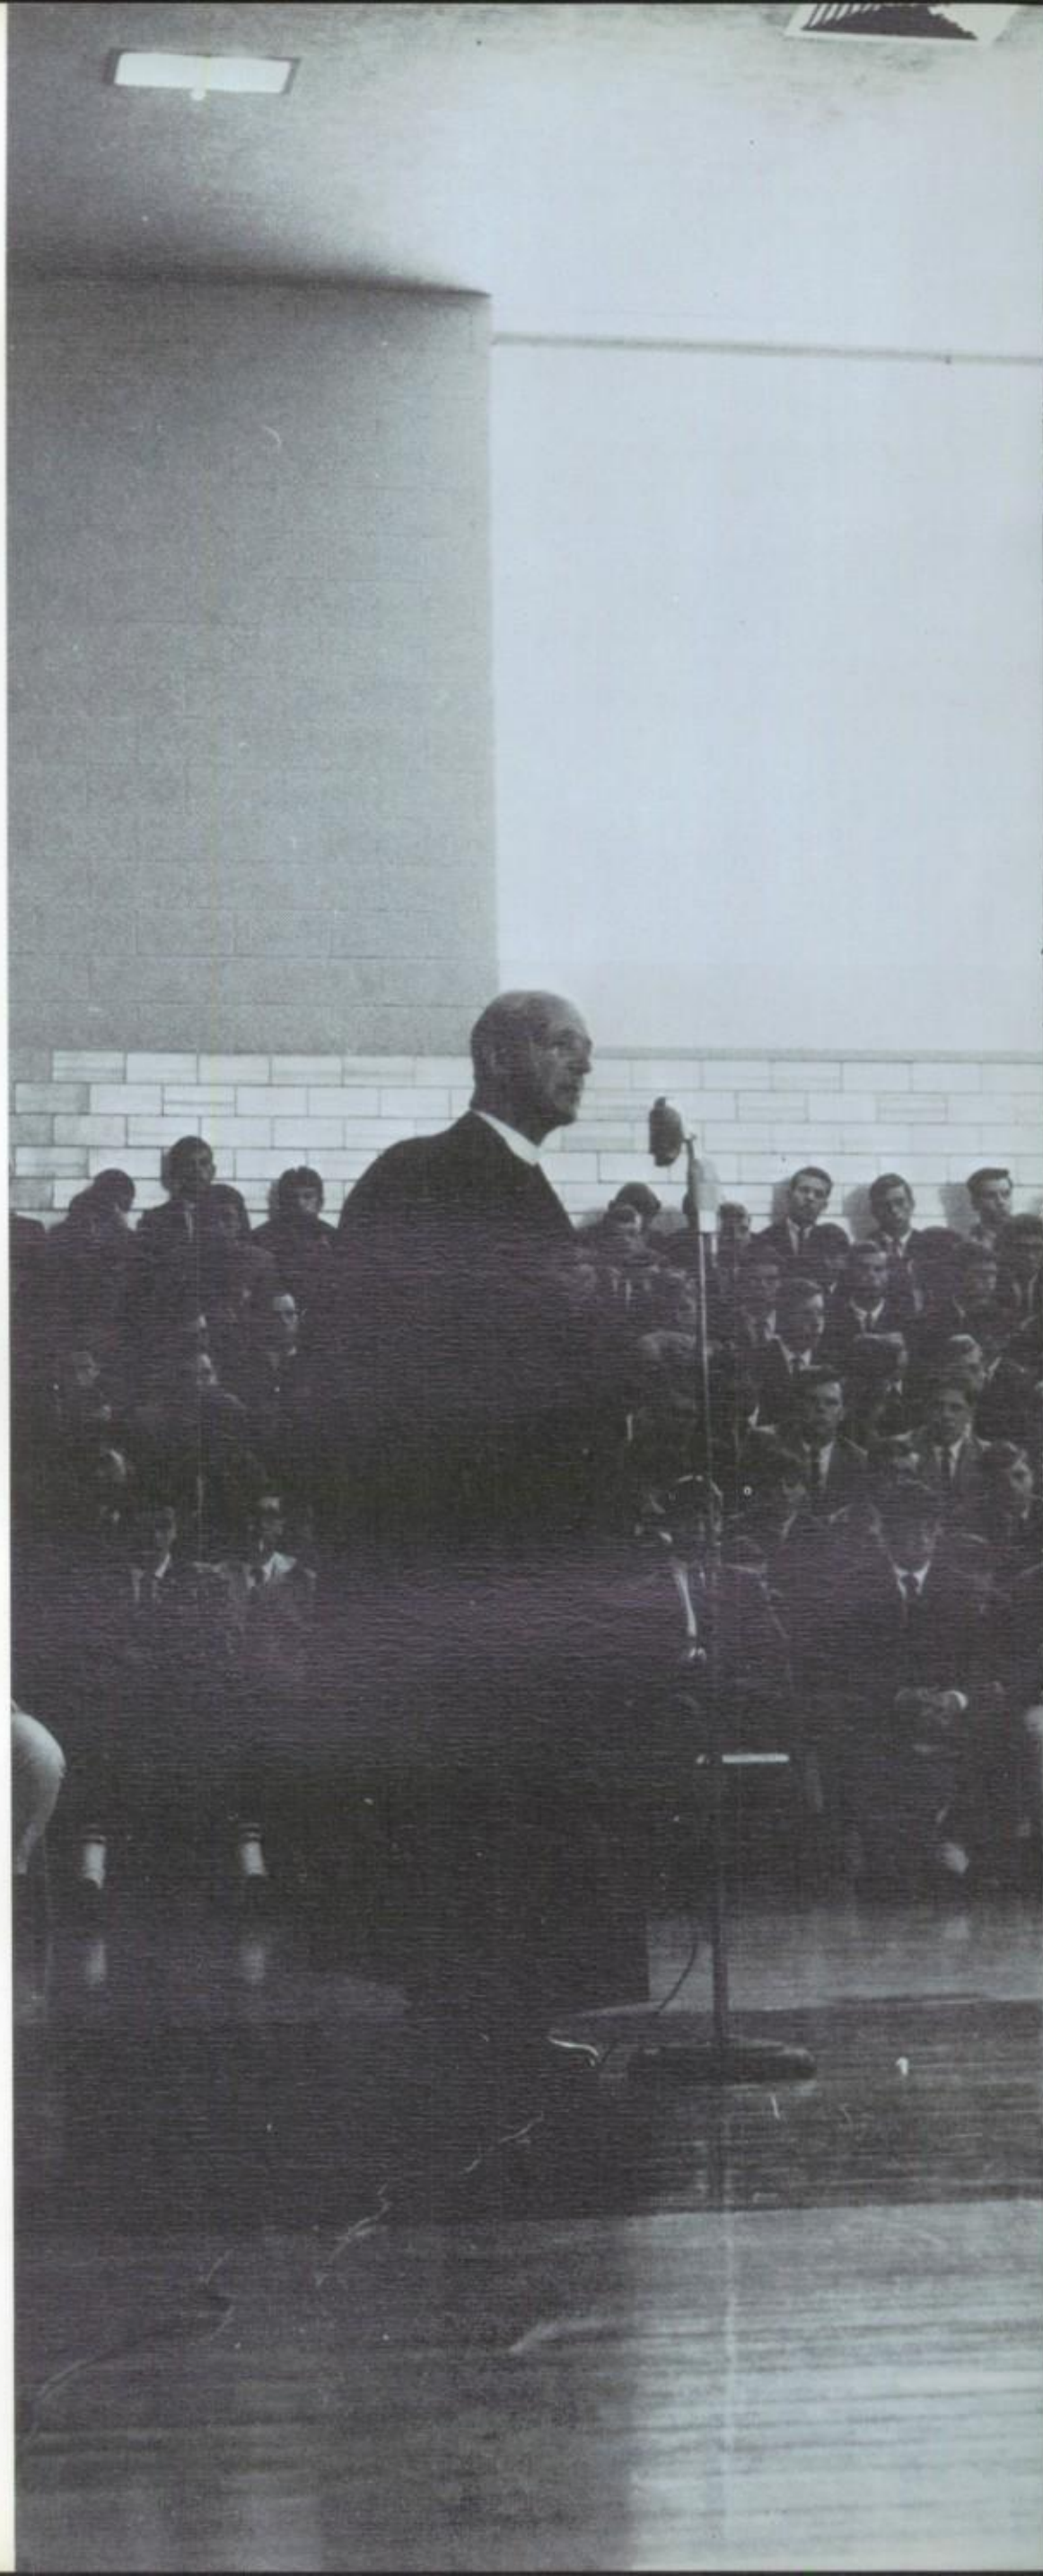

The freshman studies the history of salvation; the sophomore its continuance and permeation through the liturgy; the junior man's response to salvation through commitment; and finally the senior the apostolate of the religious and married states.

Thus prepared, the adult commences his apostolate.

Bro. Michael F. O'Donnell
Chairman

Fr. Clifford Howells speaks to the student body.

The English program consists of courses and activities designed to develop the skills of reading, writing, listening, and speaking which are of value to all students in their personal, social, and occupational life. This program stresses accuracy and comprehension in reading; clarity and fluency in speaking; and correctness, logical arrangement, and effectiveness in writing.

The English courses also emphasize the language processes of democracy, such as group thinking and discussion; critical use of mass modes of communication; and the responsibilities which freedom of speech and the press place upon speaker, writer, listener, and reader. Every effort is made to relate English to a wide range of experiences, curricular as well as personal, in the total school program.

ENGLISH

As an area of learning essential to the total program of studies, English helps to enrich life of the individual by developing personal satisfaction in reading, creative expression, dramatization, and in the enjoyment of products of the stage, screen, radio, and television. Training in the appreciation of literature helps mature the student's emotional life, develop his esthetic sense, and lead to a better understanding of human nature. Literature is a particularly apt medium for teaching moral and spiritual values.

HISTORY

History is one of those broad areas of knowledge dealing with man and society. Its subject matter relates to direct organization and development of human society and man as a member of social groups within that human society.

By the study of history, the systematic narrative of civilization and the progress of man, a student should be better prepared for life, for, by adequate knowledge of the past, he can better comprehend the present, thus becoming more self-directive and responsible.

By the study of United States history, the student gains an understanding of our present way of life—Democracy, the political, economic and social changes which have acted upon it and it upon them establishing a better citizen for the future.

Bro. Robert J. Roepke
Chairman—French

Bro. James N. McMahon
Chairman—Latin

LANGUAGES

When a subject persists in constantly challenging the student, when it insists upon a systematic approach to subject matter difficulty, when it requires sustained attention and thorough mastery, the necessity for its inclusion as a bulwark to a curriculum becomes surely and certainly an obviocity. Latin, the tongue articulating a culture and history older and more universal than ours, is such. Just two years of any language precludes the possibility of thoroughly mastering the language in question. Every encouragement is given to any student who wishes to pursue the studies of Latin and French.

Developing the whole man requires study and research about man and his diversities—customs, literature, environment, history, thought, and various patterns of expression and languages. The study of French and of France helps to accomplish the mutual understanding between neighbors needed in a contingent society. Recent research on the place of foreign languages in high school have recognized the greater emphasis which should be given to the audio-lingual skills. Keeping abreast of this amelioration, the French department introduced the language lab and placed new stress on oral self-expression and the civilization of la belle France.

SCIENCE

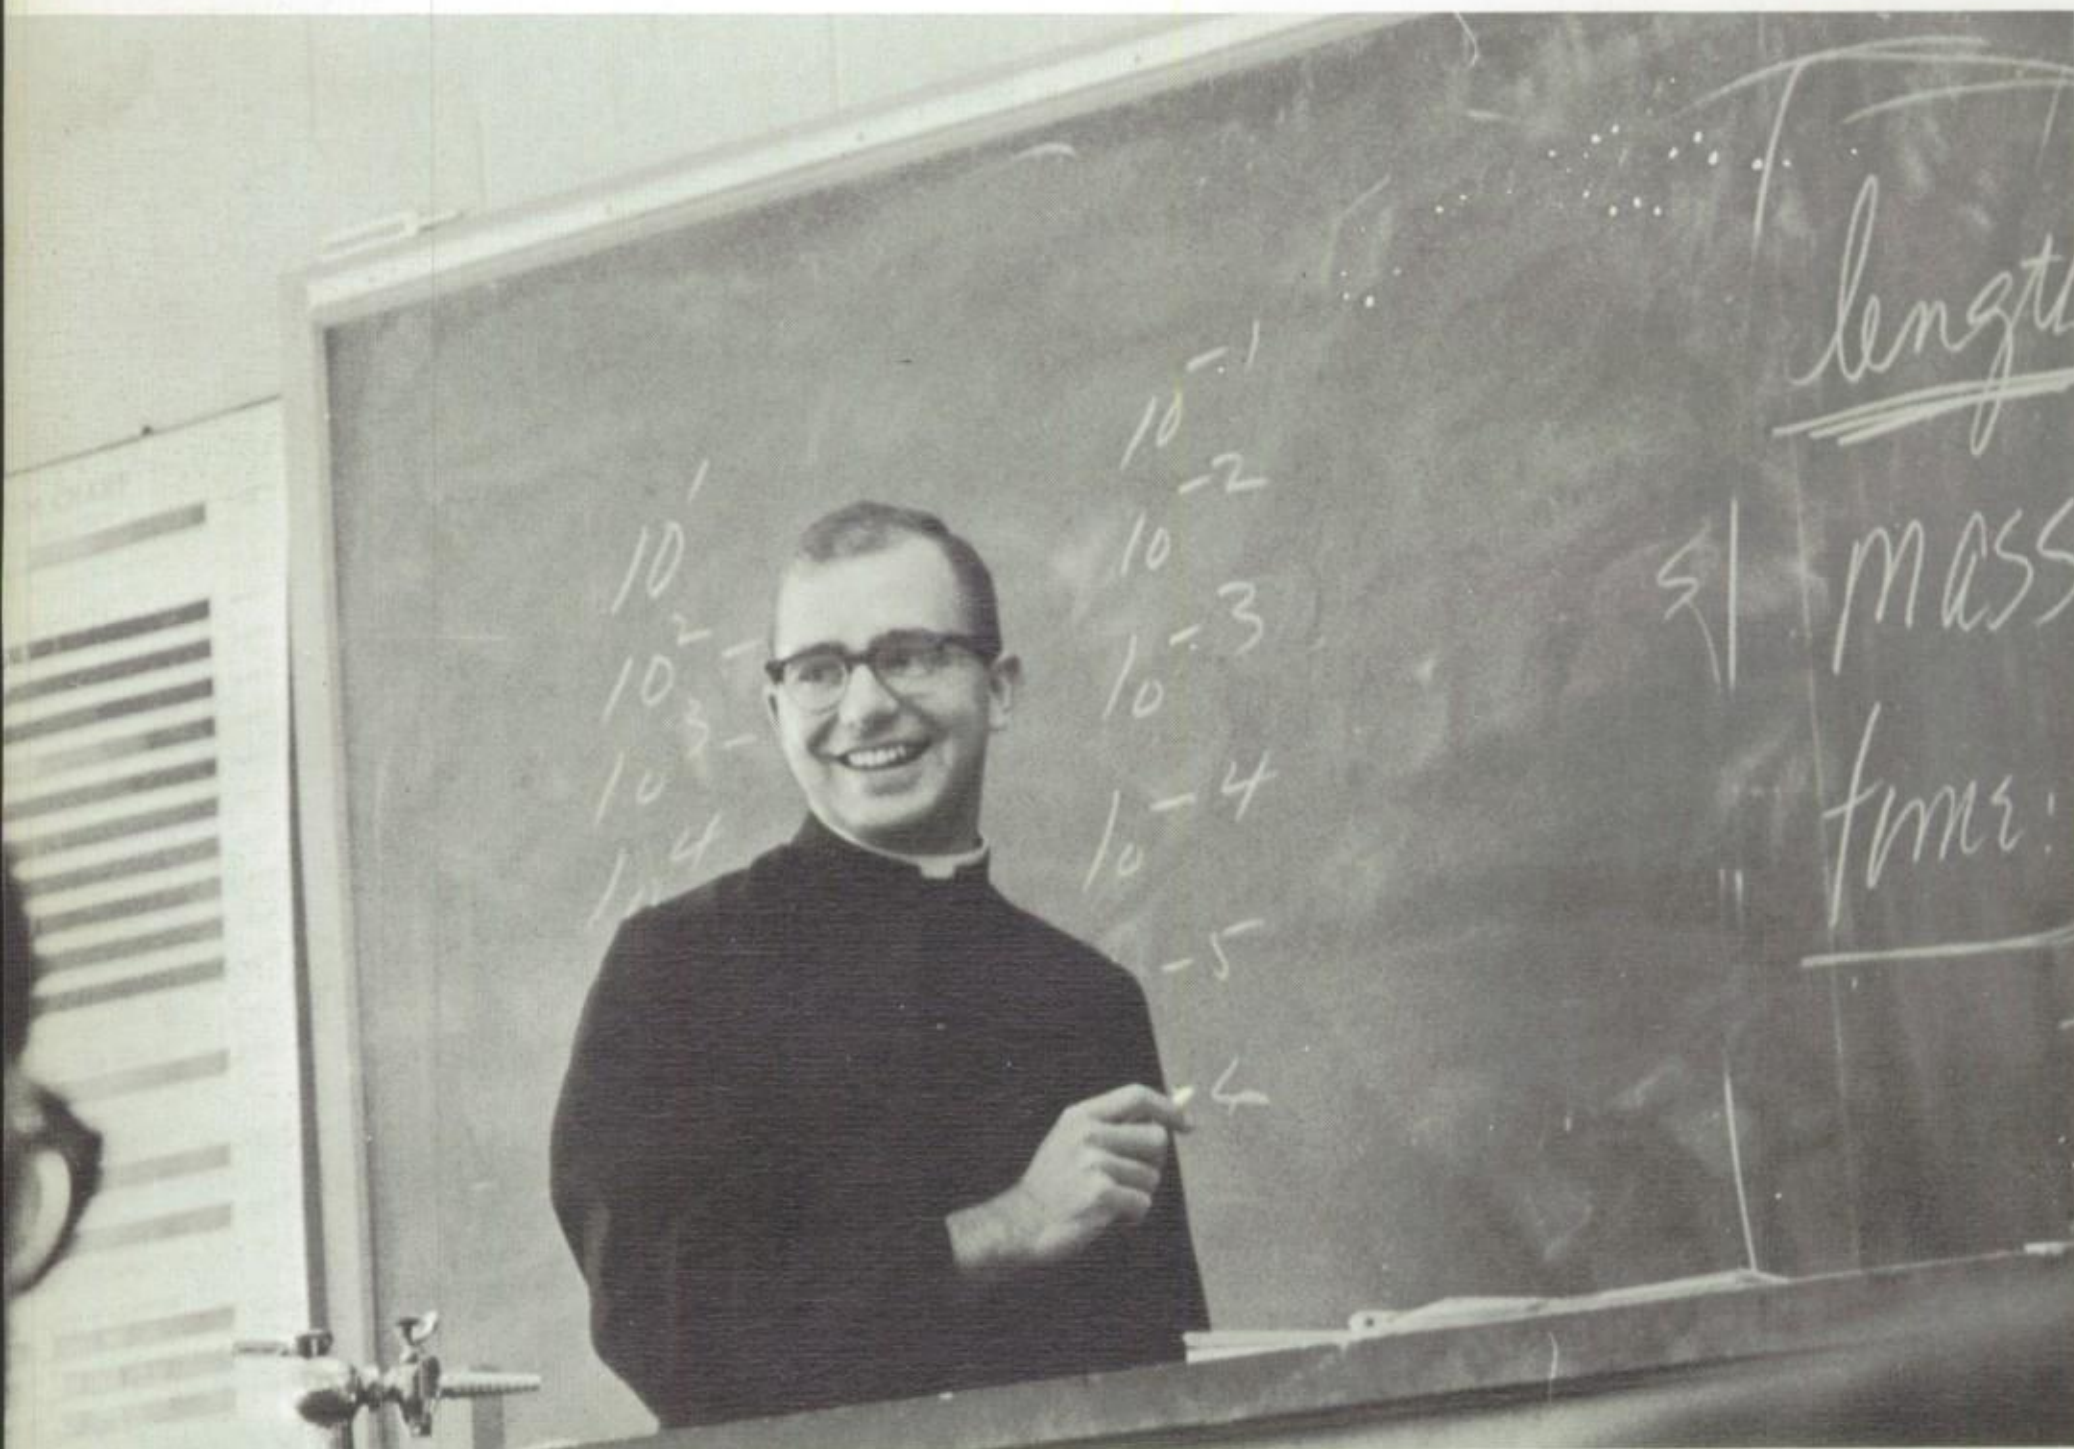

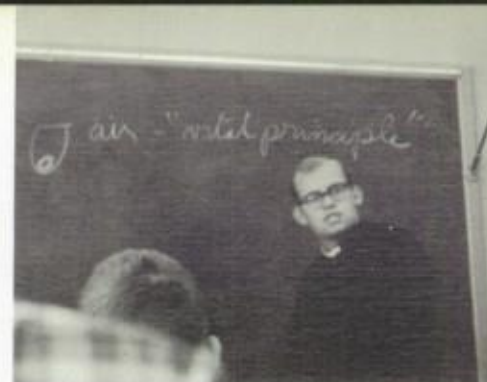

Bro. William J. Murphy
Chairman

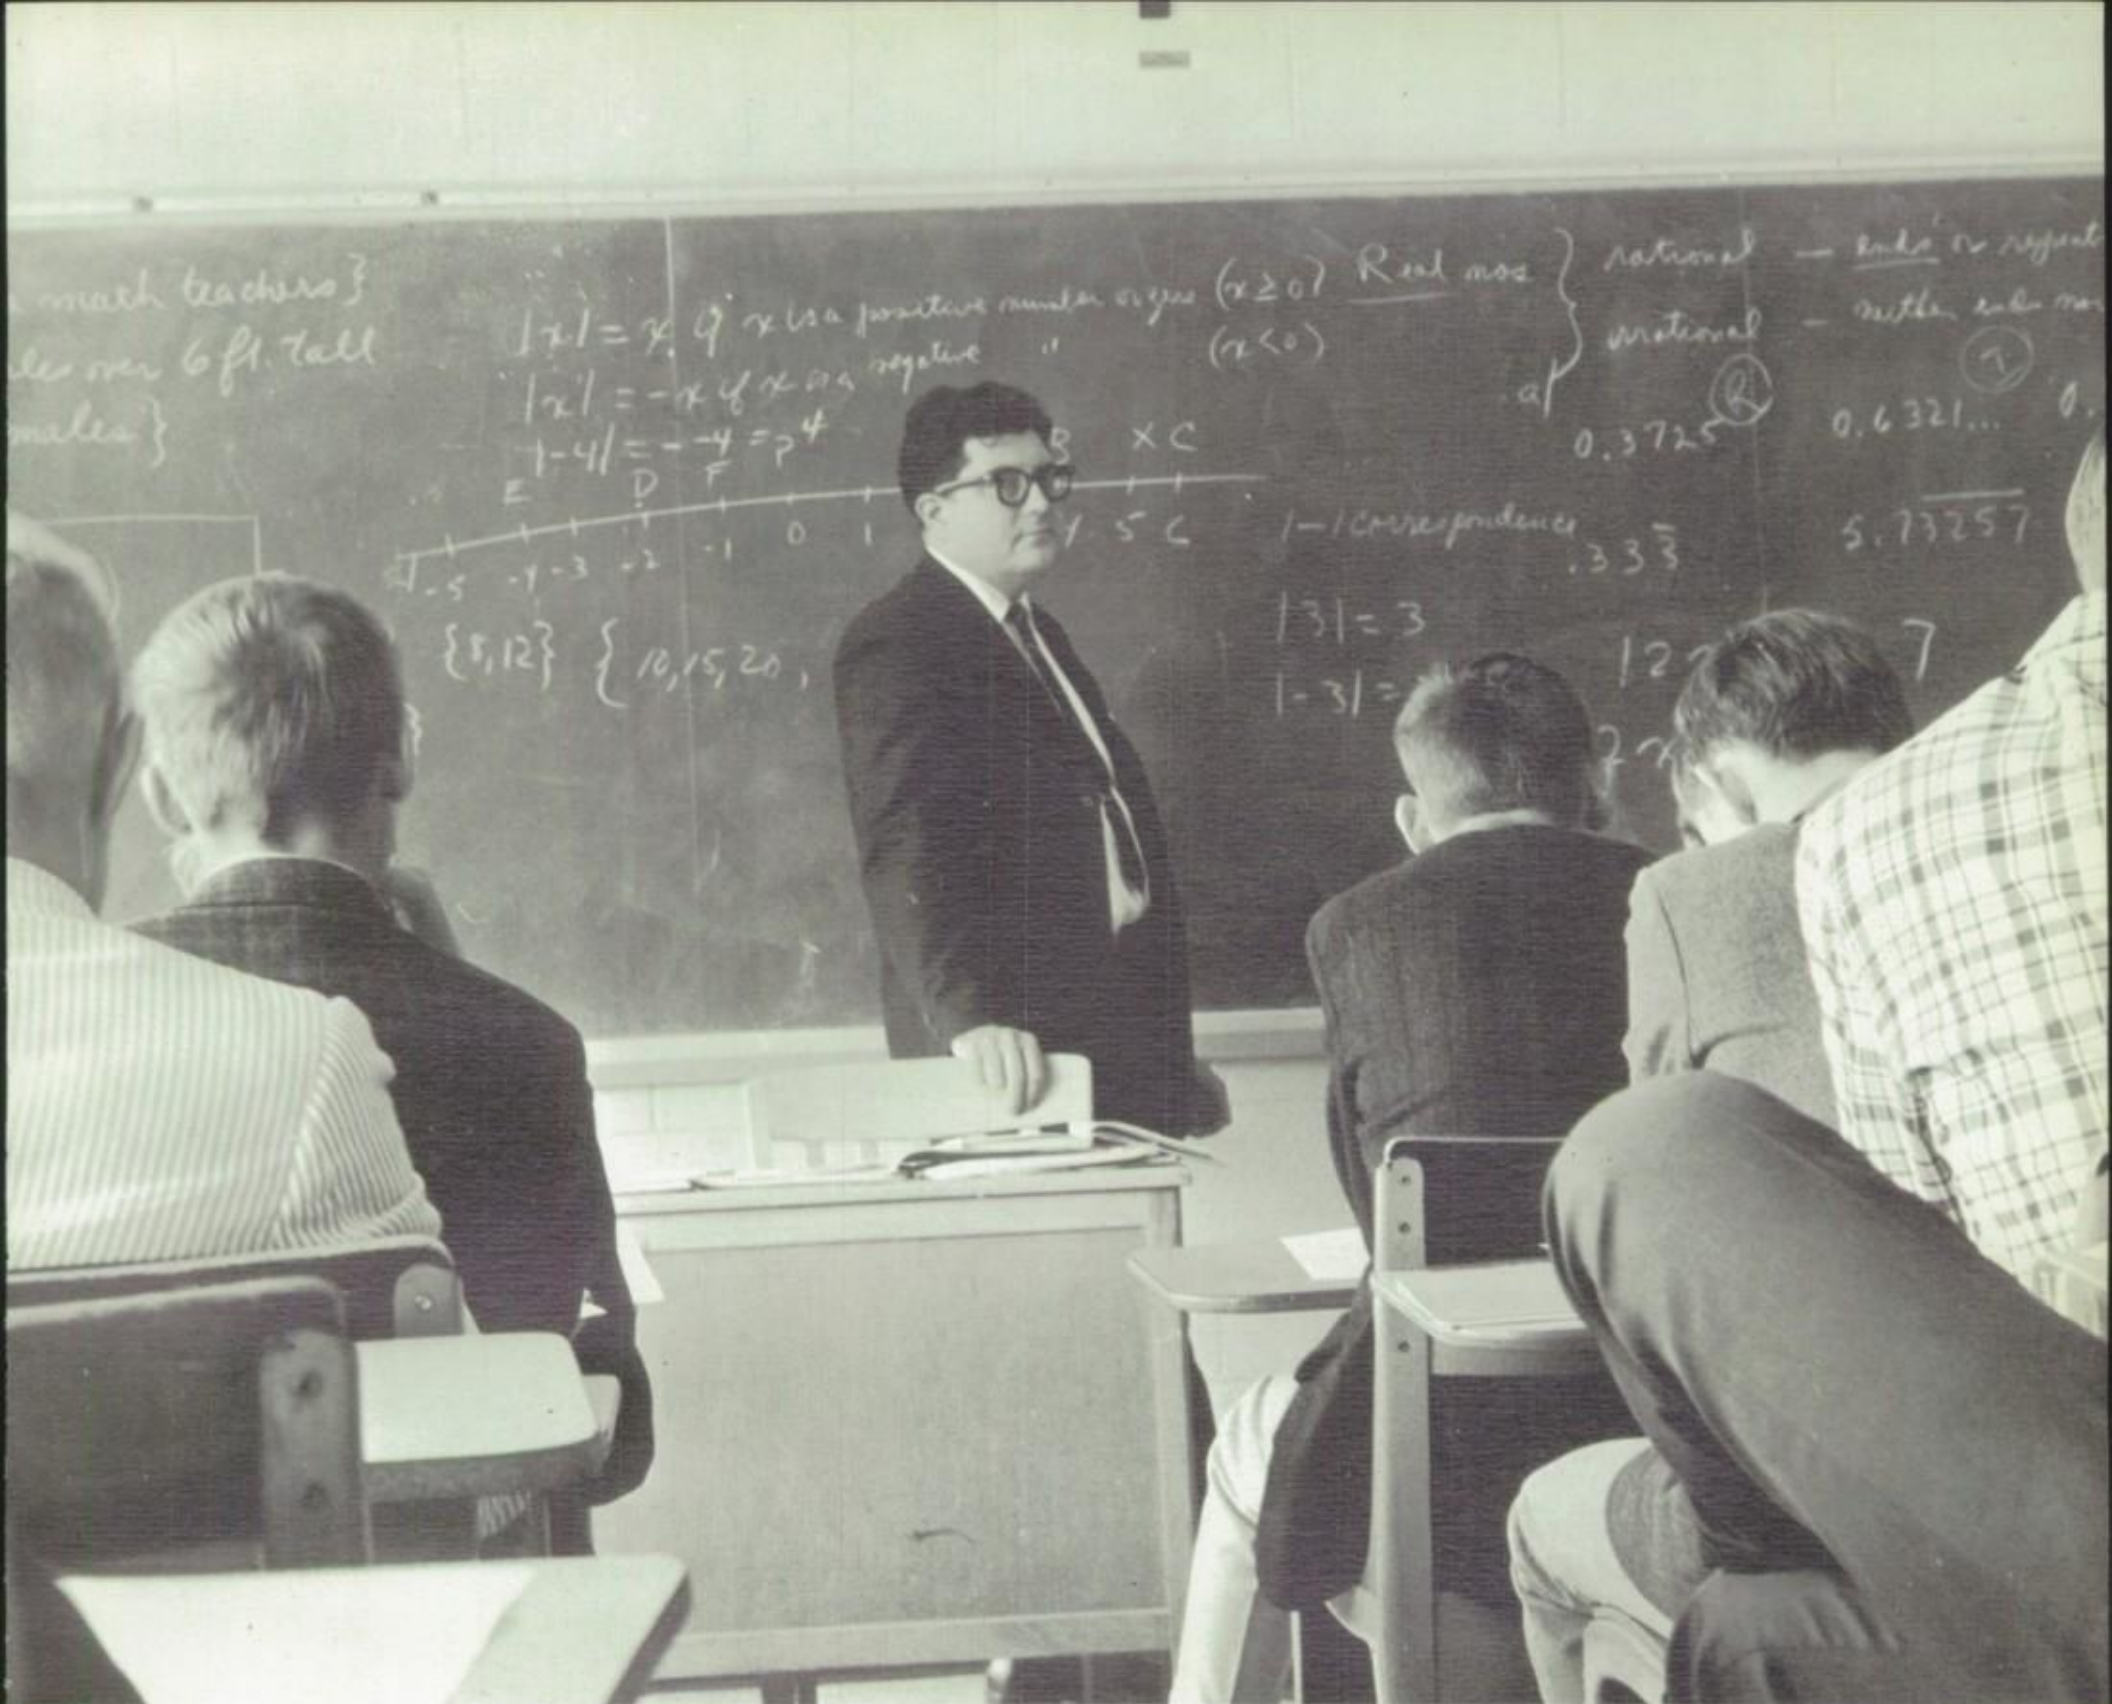

In an age of technology, when industry and government are searching for young capable scientists, the department of science in the secondary school has taken on new importance. In order to meet this pressing need, Catholic Memorial presently offers four sciences to its students.

All the sophomores are introduced into the world of the scientists through Biology, the study of "Life"—from its basic element, the cell; through its many manifestations, species; and finally to its fullest phenomenon, man. The following year, the Junior is given the choice between the Chemistry Department and its lab-centered Chem Study Program, recently introduced at C.M. and the newly formed Earth Science Course with its initiation into the disciplines of Astronomy, Geology, Petrology, etc. Finally in Senior Year, those wishing to continue in Science may elect the Physics Program—the study of matter, energy and the laws of nature.

Upon completion of this program, those interested in pursuing science after graduation will find themselves in a position to both choose intelligently, and enter confidently on a B.S. program. For all, the program in science will have equipped them to appreciate our age of technology.

MATHEMATICS

Bro. Arthur E. Newman
Chairman

Mathematics is a living, growing subject. The vitality and vigor of present day mathematical research quickly dispels any notion that mathematics is a subject long since embalmed in textbooks. Mathematics today is, in many respects, an entirely different discipline from what it was at the turn of the century. New developments have been extensive; new concepts have been revolutionary. The sheer bulk of current mathematical development is staggering.

Today, developments in mathematics are concerned with patterns of thought and insights into meaning. Thus, contemporary mathematics is characterized by: (1) a tremendous development quantitatively; (2) the introduction of new content; (3) the reorganization and extension of older content; and (4) renewed, increased and conscious emphasis upon the view that mathematics is concerned with abstract patterns of thought.

These four characteristics are prominently displayed in all the mathematics courses at Catholic Memorial.

Student Council on the move

Legislation was balky, and so was the attendance of the elected delegates, but the Student Council plodded on under the gavel of Buddy Monbouquette. The Student Council sponsored and managed pep rallies, the Christmas Drive, the October dance and riot, and other activities in an effort to promote greater involvement in the school.

Keeping the School Posted

C M's Poster Club is a strange group of people. Led by Brother O'Donnell, they finger-paint and draw on paper and cardboard. They design and make all the spirit posters in the school, and through these posters have given incentive to the teams. Maybe you were wondering where all those weird designs and nauseating color combinations came from. Now you know.

C & S N keeps the school in touch

There are a lot of people who could never possibly understand the plight of the unlucky C M student who, rushing in breathless on Monday morning to read "The Voice," finds that every single copy of the C&SN is long gone. This unlucky guy then has to grovel under desks and behind doors looking for a stray copy, or go without news for a week. Some kids never really stop to think about it, but Brother O'Donnell and his crew do a tremendous job keeping the students posted. Not many schools can boast of a weekly, and sometimes more, newspaper put out completely by the students. But we can.

Library expands facilities

Slowly the student stealthily sought to slink into the still-deserted library. (So he thought) Regardless of repeated reproofs, he had refused to return records recently requisitioned—which is a feat in itself, since records cannot be borrowed by the students.

In spite of inspiring alliteration, C M's library allows you to borrow books for a legal two weeks. As the fines mount, slips are sent to the culprits reminding them of their delinquency.

Mr. Yelle was appointed the head of the audio-visual department, devoting many hours evaluating present equipment and ordering more.

Mrs. McCormick spends most of her time keeping informed about the curricula and exigencies of the students in order to keep our library as up to date and useful as possible.

Cameramen cover school year

The cameramen had troubles. Their developer fizzled. The dryer periodically blew up. Brother Eisch screamed. They scratched negatives. Their fingerprints were left on every picture. Many pictures were taken, out of focus. The chemicals were messed up. He screamed again.

But take a look around. These are pictures taken, developed and printed by high schools kids. Hundreds of pictures and hundreds of hours of work. Their job was pretty tough. Yet, look at the results.

Masque unmasked

(Two Roman statesmen stand center stage. Caesar wears a lavender lounging toga and smokes a Tipparillo. Brutus has a red face.)

Caesar: What's that? There! (pointedly)

Brutus: Why the "Masque"!! (excitedly)

Caesar: Holy Jupiter! What's the "Masque"? (questioningly)

Brutus: A group of Thespians. A dramatic society! Poetic filibusters! Grade A hams! (satirically)

Caesar: And just what, pray tell, does the "Masque" do? (casually)

Brutus: A "Charley's Aunt," a "Valiant," a "Lucifer at Large." Look above you, sire, and you can see them. (Caesar turns. Brutus draws a knife from the heel of his sandal.) (stealthily)

Caesar: Hmm—I imagine these are—plays. Am I right? Yes. I am right, Brutus. For I was in the colloseum when Steve Schnetzer sported lace as Charley's Aunt. (Caesar turns left center. Brutus raises dagger. Caesar turns back. Quietly Brutus hides his dagger.) And Brutus, don't forget Greg Connolly, Arthur O'Malley, Bob McLean or Steve Pender and Joe McDermott. And yes, the women. No, you will not forget Priscilla Mantos or the girls in Charley's Aunt.

Brutus: Yes, the gods are good to us. For all will say "Masque" is a tribute to Caesar.

Caesar: Ah! Brutus, you forget directors Mr. Chisholm and Brother Hennessey. These citizens cannot go unrewarded. It has been said that their ability is equalled only by Zeus himself. (mightily)

Brutus: Ah! 'tis true Caesar. The "Masque" is a most honorable dramatics club. The members struggle ceasingly and performances are excellent. (Brutus plunges dagger into Caesar's heart. (cruelly)

Caesar: Et tu, Brute! (dyingly) (Curtain closes with Caesar lying prostrate upon the stage. Brutus' head turned to Heaven.) Ah, yes! And the Catholic Memorial "Masque" goes on rehearsing.

Dance Committee draws crowd

Big Beat Music—that's what the Dance Committee sells. Apparently they do a good job, because every Friday night the gym is filled with 2,000 students and girls, all determined to have a good time. This presents a great problem to the Dance Committee, but they are stocked with willing workers who keep things running smoothly and quickly. Music is provided by visiting groups, the most frequent of which is an assemblage known as "The Tallysmen." Ahem.

The purpose of the dances is both social and financial. It provides the bulk of the revenue needed to support our ambitious athletic program. This year the fellow serving with so much success as the head shepherd has been Hugh Flanagan, generously assisted by the moderator, Bro. Newman.

Workers prepare for a large crowd.

Fashion '66

Fathers and Mothers have style

Our mothers and fathers stopped arguing long enough to cooperate on two mammoth fashion shows, one at Amaru's and the other at our home court. The event at Amaru's was a direct opposite to that staged here at C M. The Mothers were also responsible for the second lighthearted showing of fashions in February. Between these two affairs there was also placed a more sobering talk by the controversial Gordon Hall on the presence of Extremist organizations throughout America today.

In both fashion shows beautiful moms were the models, making the fathers proud—and also cutting expenses. Mrs. Perkins worked for everybody in making this the best year for the Parents' Club. Every Wednesday night, fathers became croupiers as they led the gaming operation called, innocently enough, "Blitz." All of this work in addition to giving the old folks a night out, provided thousands of dollars for our Athletic Fund.

Oh, yeah! Oh, yeah!

First Friday and Mass is over

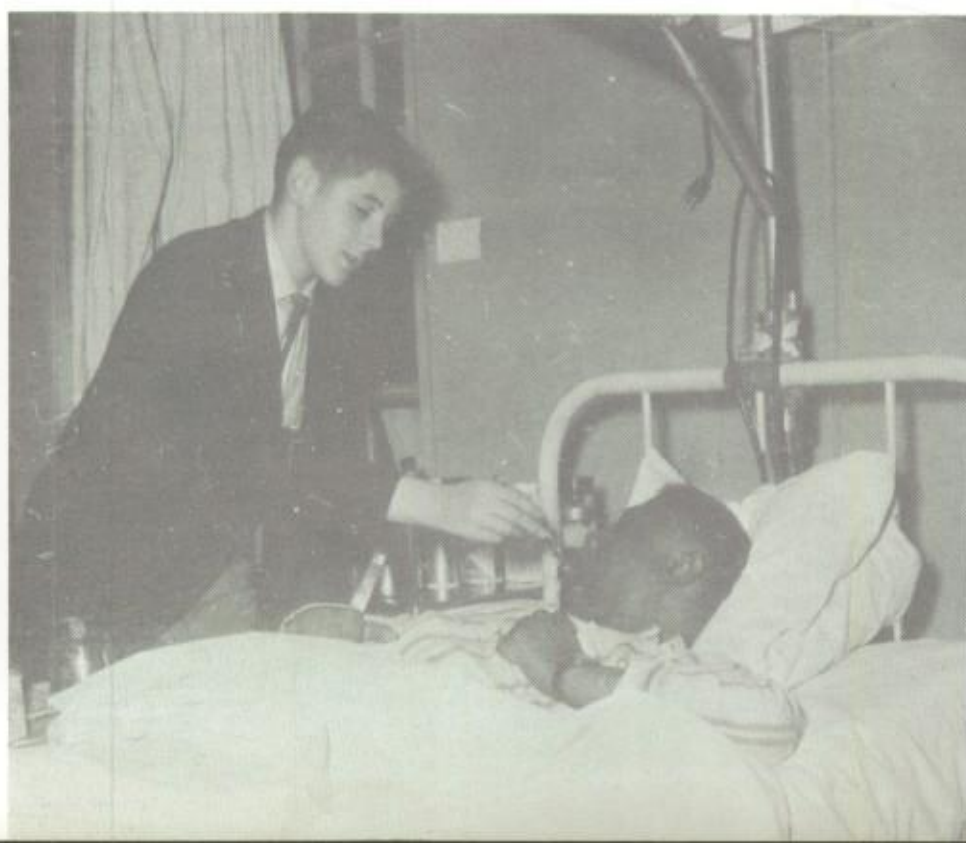

Legion is there

When the new members of the Legion of Mary went to visit the kids at the Italian Home for the first time, they really didn't know what to expect. Little Mario fixed things up pretty fast though; he wanted to know if they were at the bus station when Punchy McLaughlin got there. The Legion came back just about every week after that. Some of them got bloody noses playing football and others fell off the Merry-go-Round at one of the picnics, but they found it was pretty good going most of the time.

A lot of them went over to the V.A. during the week and had a few laughs with the disabled veterans. They did a lot to cheer up the men. There are a lot of other things they did; they started the First Friday Masses at school; they organized the Christmas basket drive; they let light shine among men.

It's tough trying to pose kids for something they do without posing.

Apollonian staff publishes literary gems

Moderator Mr. Jackson and Editor Ken Neil

In its third year of publication, the Apollonian has become one of Catholic Memorial's most noteworthy endeavors. The purpose of the magazine is to provide a creative outlet for hidden writing talent from the often reluctant minds of our students.

There is no restriction, as is often supposed, with regard to material which may be submitted for publication. All forms of original writing, from book reviews to satires, are encouraged. Each manuscript is carefully studied by the staff of the Apollonian which is composed of students willing to give up their free time in order to help perfect the literary skills of others and themselves. Under the capable guidance of Mr. Jackson, and the equally helpful assistance of Mr. Hopkins, the staff helps the writer transform his rough manuscript into a finished work worthy of publication. The magazine is published in May and is distributed to the student body.

The Apollonian derives its name from Apollo who, as the Greek god of youth, manliness, music, and poetry, typified the ideal man. It is the aim of the Apollonian to bring out the ideal man in every Catholic Memorial student.

Glee Club Notes

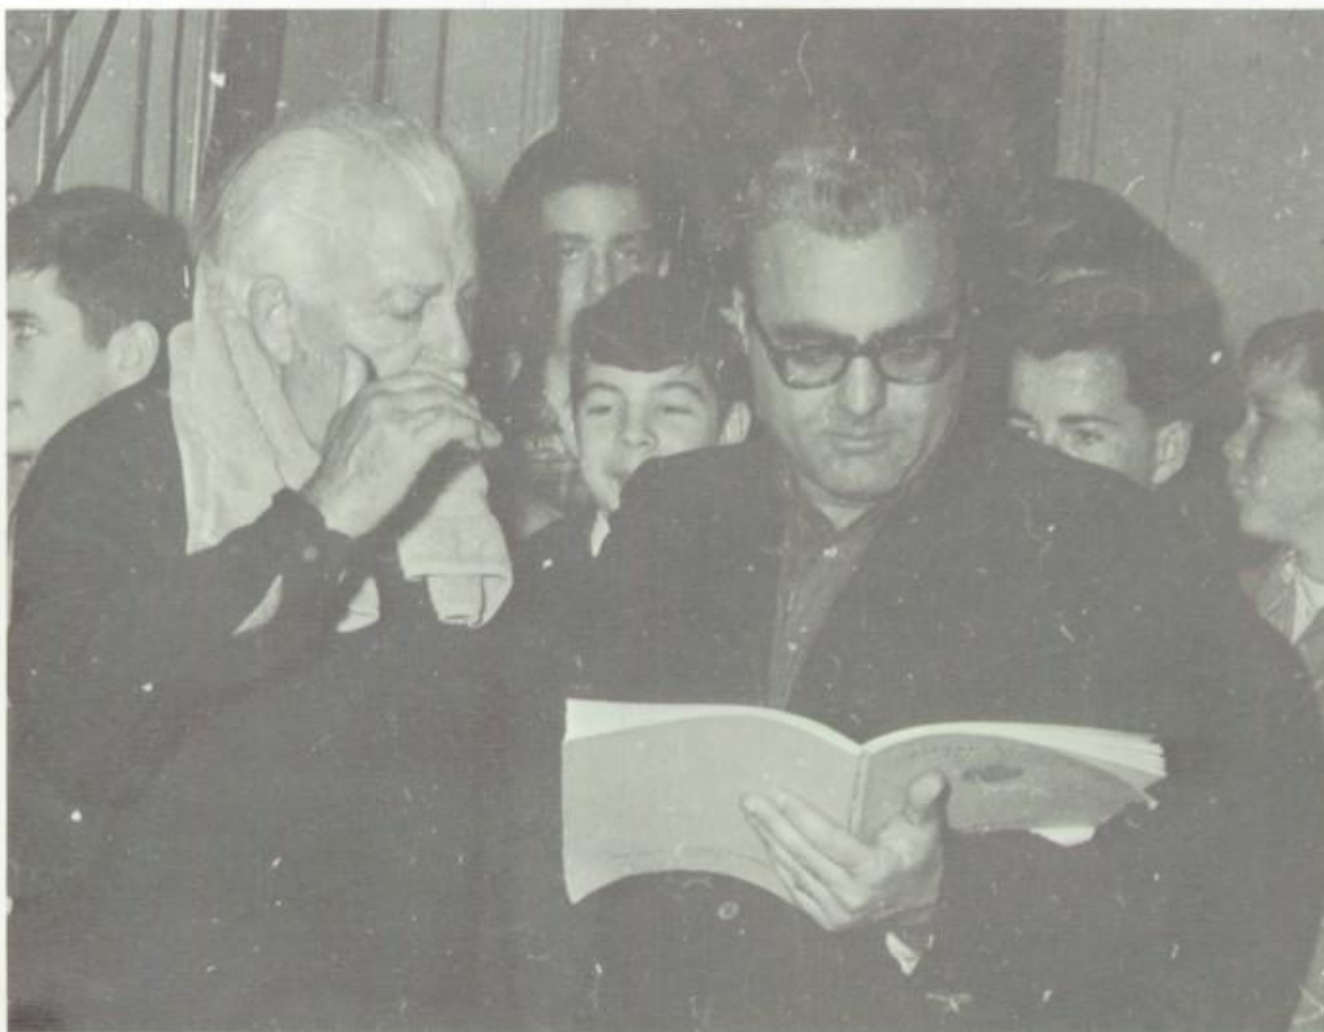

When the Glee Club sang their annual Christmas concert at Jordan Hall, Director Berj Zamkochian and his followers were just warming up. Jewish psalms and Negro spirituals weren't forgotten the next day when the C.M. troubadours did Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite", with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. A varied program such as this is typical of Catholic Memorial's oldest and biggest organization. Under the leadership of Dr. Zamkochian, moderator Bro. Newman, and president Ed Lenox, this year's Glee Club is living up to, and increasing, their well-deserved reputation as a superb musical organization. The Glee Club has long been recognized as one of the most successful choral groups in the country, and has received numerous requests for appearances from all parts of the nation.

Messrs. Zambelli and Zamkochian acknowledge plaudits.

On December 19, the Sopranos presented, with the Boston Ballet Company, Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite."

Edmundians cause commotion

The entertainers of the Glee Club—the Edmundians—give performances throughout the state. A mixture of the Kingston Trio, The Weavers, and the Vienna Boys choir would be the only description of these fifteen men who boldly step out of the Glee Club every concert. They provide what literature critics would call comic relief.

During breaks in the music, the Edmundians come driving in on Kiddie cars, wearing sombreros, singing commercials, ("Brylcreem, a little dab will do ya.") and generally they raise Cain. The audience starts to rave, to cry and to roll in the aisles. Afterwards, looking at their swollen hands they wonder whether they really did come to hear Giovanni Gabrelli's "In Ecclesias."

DEBATE: an education in itself.

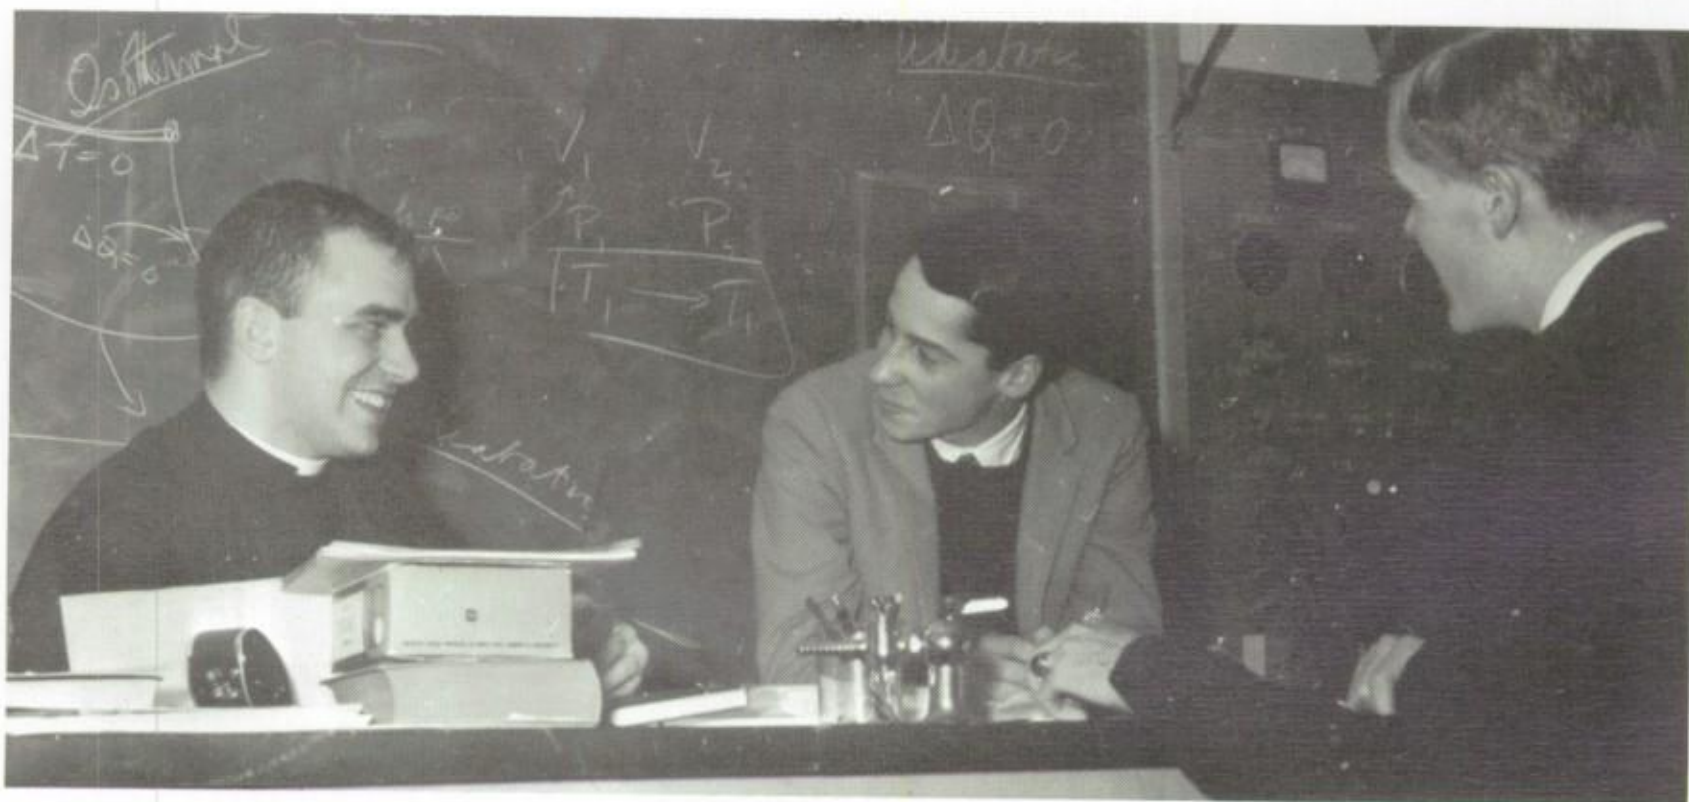

The season begins just a few days after final exams. Three, four, or more of those "Vacation Days" a week are spent in the library. Your time every afternoon till 6:00 is already accounted for. Once the school year begins, Saturday will find you greeting the dawn as you jam books, charts, files into the station wagon, and it's rare that you return before dark. Then there will be occasional all-weekend trips to New York, Washington, or Erie, Pa. The question that you must ask yourself over and over is this: "Can any one activity be so important and worthwhile to justify so much?"

Some twenty students at CM have answered "yes" to this question. These students learn, as in no other discipline, how to think, write, and speak intelligently and confidently. The depth of research attained in studying the topics will perhaps find no rival even on the college undergraduate level. This year's topic-research on Compulsory Arbitration in Labor Management Problems led the team from the simple areas of Labor Relations and Strikes into the involved aspects of Inflation, Full Capacity Economy, and Government Fiscal Policy. But KNOWING information is not enough! The ability to convey that information in an organized, interesting and captivating manner is of equal, if not greater, importance. Beginning with the discipline of Non-Original Oratory the student moves on to Original Oratory. He may try his hand at Extemporaneous Oratory or turn to the more analytical Debate.

The travelling, the relationships with people from other parts of the country, the interviews with government and university personnel; and most important, the close fellowship of twenty intelligent, determined and clever students—these make membership in the group an education in itself.

Track Tops Tri-County Teams

The Indoor Track team stormed off to the League Championship this year by winning all its meets. Team victories were accomplished by the amazing individual efforts of many seniors. The entire field events team was outstanding in point performance and did not lose a single competition all year.

Bernie Monboquette and Captain Jim Leahy stood out among the leaders of this year's team—Bernie, hurdler and winner of "Most Sportsmanlike Athlete" award, and Jim as the State Mile Champ.

Over the past five seasons, this team has won 43 out of 44 meets. Brothers Murphy, Reilly, Vesey, and Conway seem to have become used to winning.

Bill O'Connell, who scored season's record of 72 points.

Jim Leahy, this year's captain, finishes first at the B.A.A. at Boston Garden.

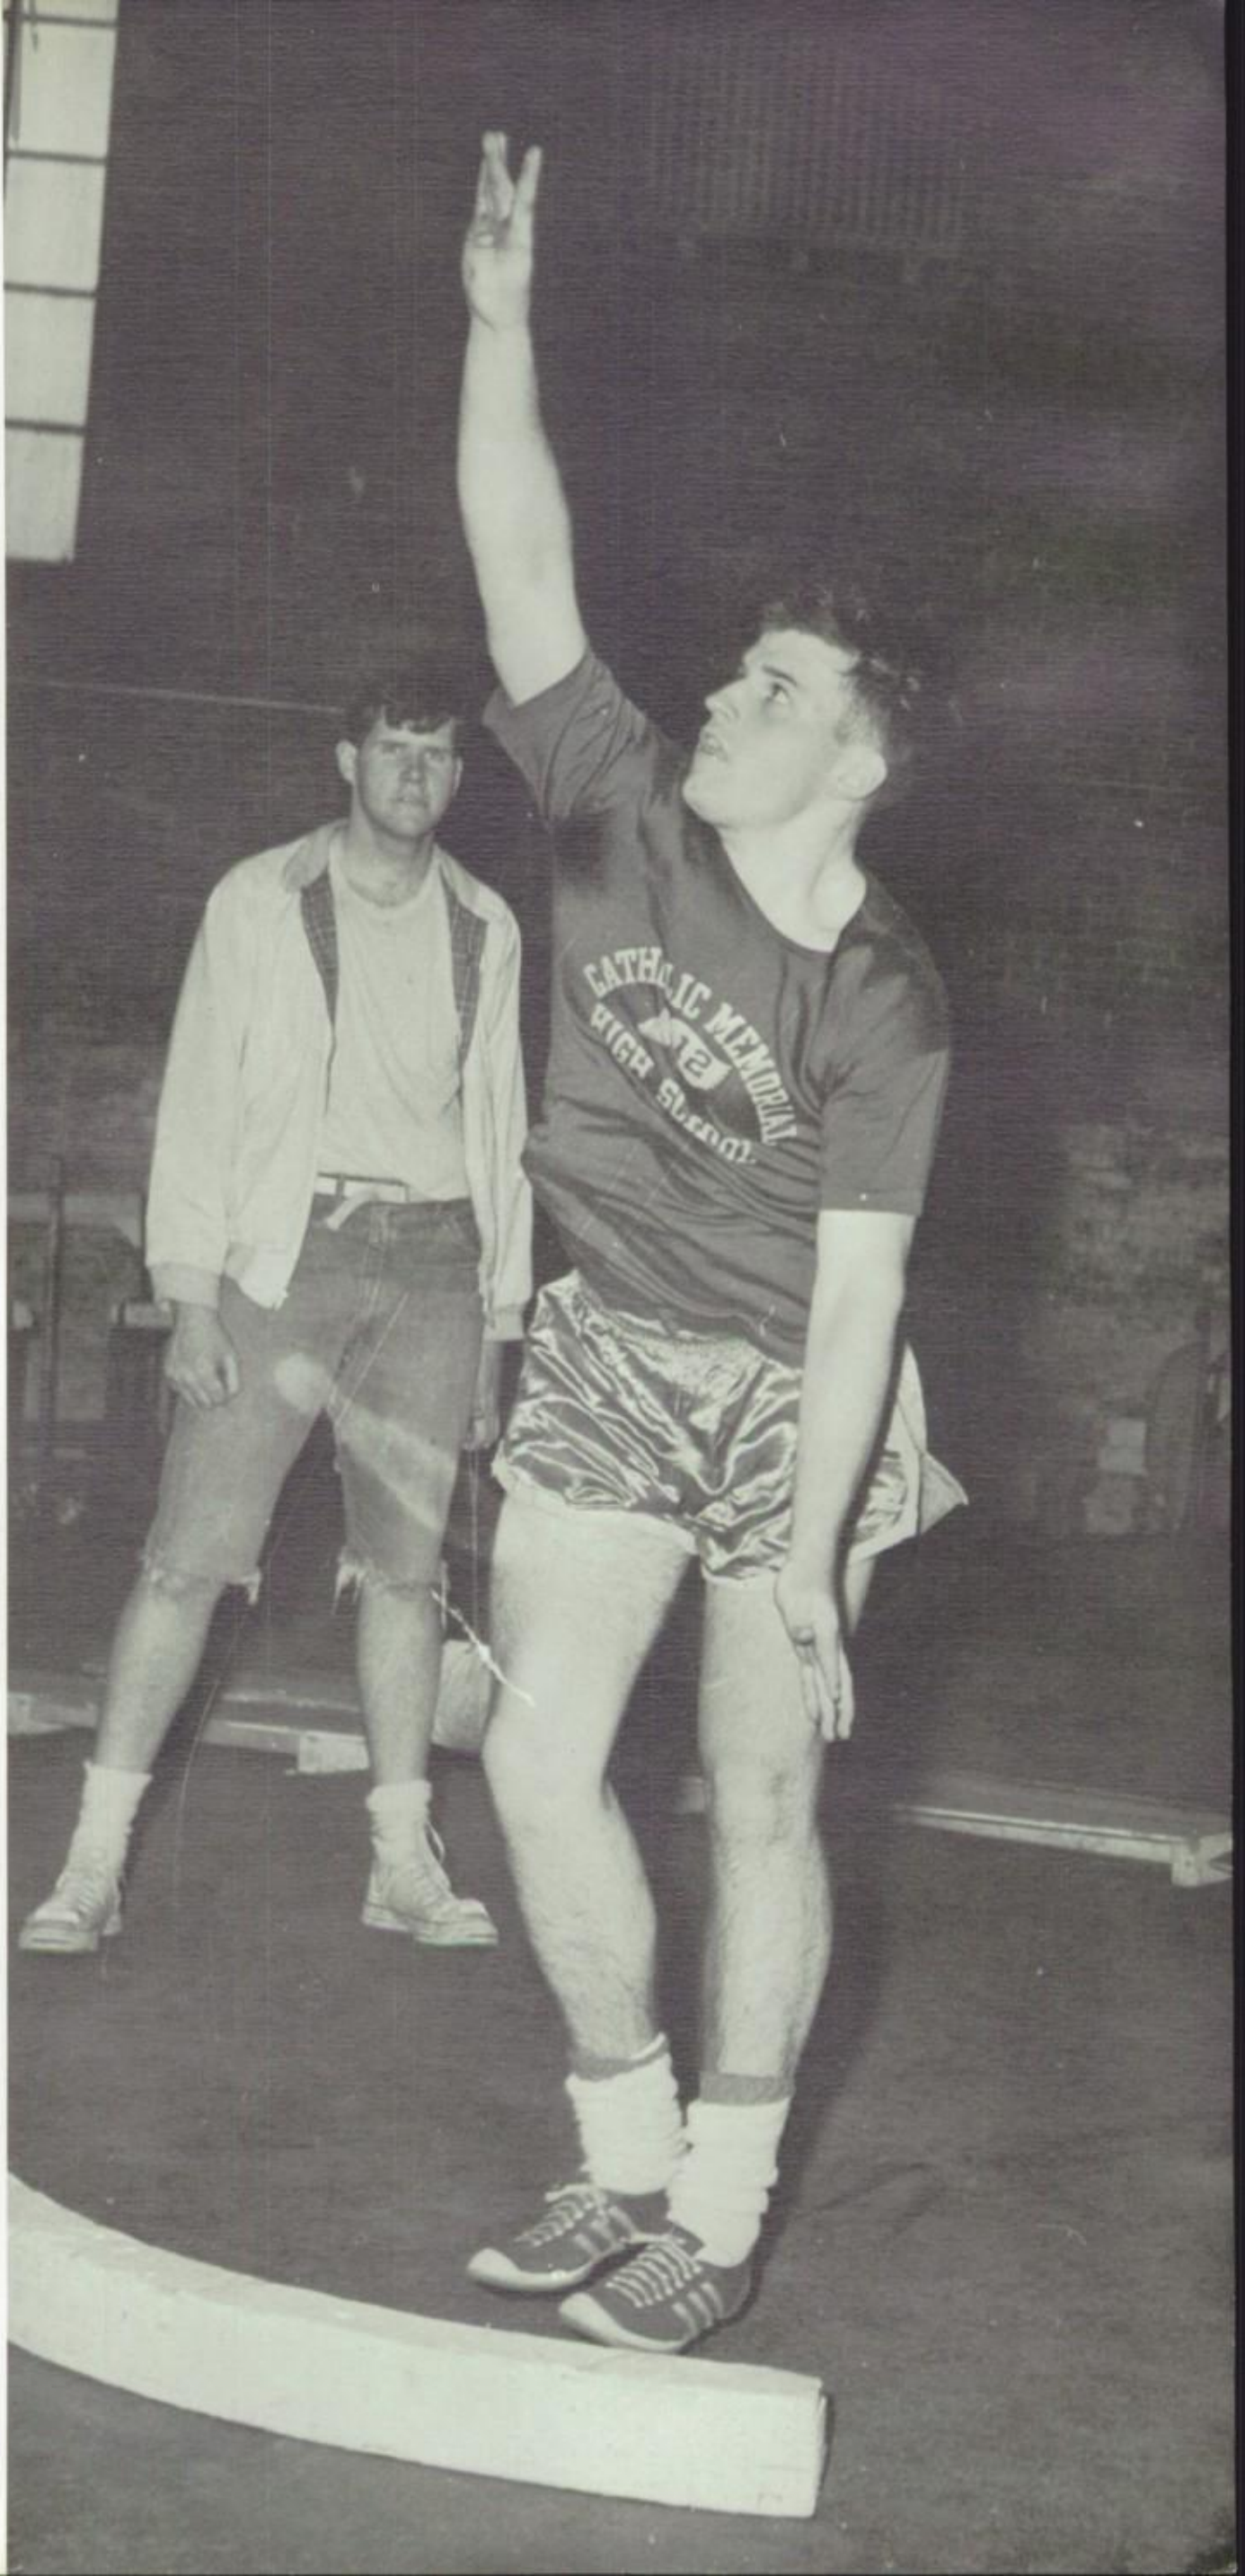

Steve McGrath successfully makes a pass at Bernie Monboquette.

Football team wins big ones

The football player is a very special kind of athlete. He has a burning desire to hit and to be hit. He is willing to sacrifice his time, his energy, and sometimes his well being, for this tremendous love he has for the game of football.

We can best describe this year's edition of Catholic Memorial Football by using the word "dedication." Led by captain Gerry Doherty their season actually began in December of 1964. At that time they commenced a regular weight training program to which they devoted three afternoons a week.

With the coming of spring the team donned equipment and took to the field for twenty-one days of grueling contact. The end of each week was highlighted with scrimmages with Saugus, Gloucester, and North Quincy high schools.

After spring practice it was back to the weights during the months of April, May, and June. Summer vacation found the team meeting two evenings a week for weight lifting and agility drills.

September 1 brought the entire team back from summer occupations of all types. At this time the squad was put through double sessions with contact and evening skull sessions lasting until the first day of school. Scrimmages with North Quincy, Boston Latin, Gloucester, and Brockton High showed that the dedication of the squad would result in a fruitful season.

The results of such "dedication" were a 6-3 season, a win over powerful Archbishop Williams, a second place finish in the strong Catholic Conference, and the bringing home of the "PUMPKIN" with a Thanksgiving Day win over the little boys from Morrissey Boulevard.

Five members of the team were named to the All-Star team, including three repeaters from last year. Dick McGlynn and Al Doyle will be remembered by opposing players for their bruising play and constant effort. For the second season in a row, Kevin Ahearn led the League scorers, followed closely by wings Kevin Carrigan and Bob Kelly. Assisting Joe Quinn as coach was Ed McElaney, a former C.M. hockey captain and the best player in the history of the school. Determination

Once a basketball player, with a ball in his hand, looks up at a basket, almost nothing can make him resist the temptation to take a shot. Donovan stepped to a point about seventeen feet from the basket and lifted the ball high, and a long set shot rolled off his fingers and began to arc toward the basket with a slow backspin. Everybody called it. Everybody watched the ball except Donovan, whose eyes never left the basket until the ball dropped in. They shot again. Swish! Again! Swish! We were watching five miracles. Mr. Perry has said that this has been his most satisfying season as a coach because of the determination of the boys. They were expected to lose, but they didn't for a long time. When they did, the last game of the season, everybody was stunned, especially those who didn't go to the games. For nineteen games they beat the pressure. I can't think of a very good ending to this, because these guys aren't the ending type. When I come back as an alumnus, I expect to see the biggest trophy of all—to Mr. Perry.

Cross Country: Speed and Guts

Guts, that is what makes a cross country runner. You run until your entire body is tied in knots; then, if you are good, you run even harder. Team Captain, Jimmy Leahy, claims they are the hardest working bunch of guys in the school. After all, they are State Champs!

This year the C. M. I., proving ground for the state meet, had 1,100 competitors entered in its two divisions. The promising J V captured first place, while the Frosh and Varsity placed third. Catholic Champs?—C M in all three divisions.

This record is only the proof of the effort this team put into winning. Their desire to win, leadership, and just plain courage made them the best team in the state.

Seniors Were Six

The C.M. swim team got off to a fast start winning the first five meets but slumped off later to a record of 6-4-1. The Knights finished fourth in their league, led by Rev. Albrecht, Jim Foye, and Kevin MacDonald.

In the East Mass. League Championships, C.M. rallied to finish third. Placing second and fourth in the medley and freestyle relays, the Knights were paced by second place finishes in the butterfly and backstroke (Kev Albrecht and Jim Foye) and fourth place finishes in the breaststroke and 200 freestyle (Kevin MacDonald and Alan MacIsaac).

At the gun Charlie Kimball (in stripes) gets a quick start. This was at Brookline.

Alumni Now Publishing

CM graduates from the classes of 1961 and 1962 have founded an Alumni Association and have finished categorizing information on their classes. The Association began meeting impromptu at Thanksgiving and Christmas sport events and gradually came to define meeting times. Now, the members publish newsletters and generally have a "Grand olde tyme."

Leo Brehm '62, took charge of distribution.

Dick Nolan, (below and on left) is President and carries the bulk of the work. He graduated with the first class.

Leo Auclair and Charles Molloy, both grads of '62.

I looked at a lot of yearbooks before I planned this page. I wanted to thank lots of people. Brother Eisch - I wish to thank more than anyone. Chris Morin who really didn't do the spelling. Jim Flynn, Mr. Davis, and the Alston Studios for taking pictures. The other seniors, Rich Gallivan, Gerry Sullivan, Kenny Foscaldo, Ed Lenox, Jim Gustin. The underclassmen who'll get their turn next year. Mr. Moore of O'Toole Yearbook Company, who came and helped overtime. I want to thank Tim Harrington for letting me in on Saturdays, and Brother McIlmurray for watching us patiently on some of our less peaceful days. I want to thank God for letting the job get done on time.

Peter
